

The great contribution to the education in the Modern Architecture History of modern age in several new historical activities.

Yamaguchi Hiroshi, Emeritus Professor, Nihon University

Professor Yamaguchi is studying the Modern Architecture History more than 50 years. He denied the way of looking at design only to the architecture and got the credit seriously with taking the relationship between architecture and society concerning viewpoint in Japanese and Western History. He established the studying system from a viewpoint of substructure and several new historical activities. His studying system has an effect on many young researchers.

In addition, He also held many symposiums and lectures for the mass of the people. He spread the architectural culture in the public through his applying the viewpoint to the conservation theory of modern architecture in modern society.