

森のオフィス

OFFICE IN FOREST

The head office project targets not on the value of the object view in respect to sculptural appearance of the building, but rather on the value of the environmental view with body experience.

Various places are created in the whole of the site with hut volumes and 4 season gardens. The large reflect ceiling and different types of windows invite plantation colors to inside. Body experience here changes dramatically according to seasons, weathers and human activities.

This project proposes a new approach to office design, which enables us to choose working places not only by function or work typology, but also by the experiential qualities of a space and its effect on the human body through reflected nature.