“KENCHIKU-SHINJINSEN” is an opportunity where rookies with hidden talents can come under the spotlight, and furthermore, question their own ideas, abilities and educational environments. In this contest, students present design assignments that they have worked on at each of their school lives.

This is the 7th time that this contest has taken place and the numbers of application have increased while the qualities of the students’ works have steadily improved. I believe without a doubt that “The Rookies’ Award for Architectural Students” will keep on evolving for years to come.
