

SHONAN HARBOR YACHT HOUSE

Although Enoshima Yacht harbor is situated in a very popular tourist destination “Enoshima”, it had a closed image and was less accessible for people who were not involved in yachting. Our main concept for the composition for the new yacht house was “An open space for everyone” where not only sailors but also anyone can stop by at any time. The open space is opened to the harbor promenade and cafe and shop is located facing the harbor road so that lights and festivity of people would spread to the town. One big roof hangs over from the open space on the 1st floor to the event hall on the 2nd floor and to the outdoor terrace, which creates a space where inside and outside is continuous. The event hall overlooks the harbor and can be used integrally with the outdoor terrace. The curved surface roof which is designed getting the inspiration from the waves is a result of seeking how it would look from the sea, the direction of the prevailing wind, the way natural light comes in and the balance point of structure constraints. The seemingly deregulated cut lines of the big roof is called the “open beam” and is a summary of device of many functions (Bringing in natural light and structural beam). As a high side light it takes in appropriate amount of light into the whole space. Though it is a 2000m<sup>2</sup> huge space it creates various comfortable space.
