K2 HOUSE

The ensemble of three triangles surrounding a quadrangle, K2 House sits across a lively open urban block and at the edge of a densely-built wooden house area. The triangular volumes’ minimal timber framework lifts the quadrangular volume; underneath which is an undivided room spilling over the triangular corners and, from the western garden, opening onto neighborhood housing gaps serving as green paths. With glazing aplenty, these corners let in breezes, a hint of the surrounding environment, and an interplay of the daylight—choreographing the overlapped impression of the sections in the undivided room, creating a comfortable sense of depth and blurring borders with outside.
